ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAMS

London, 14th.

General Brackenbury's telegram not confirmed, and supposed Mahdi still alive and kicking.

PRESS TELEGRAMS.

Cairo, 10th.—The financial state of the country shows no improvement.

It is feared that, if energetic steps are not taken, Egypt will be completely bankrupt next September.

Paris, 10th.—Government has thrown out the project to construct an underground railway.

Government has applied for 100,500 francs to cover the expenses entailed by the public observance of Victor Hugo.

London, 11th.—An entirely unknown disease of an epidemic nature has appeared in this city and many of the country districts. Those that are attacked by the disease in question die in the space of a few minutes, without any apparent suffering.

Up to this date the disease is completely baffled by the physicians, and no remedy proving efficacious to meet the evil.

Madrid, 10th.—Yesterday 1,450 further cases of cholera and 68 deaths were reported.

It is thought that this city will not suffer much from the epidemic.

Montevideo, 14th.—Letters from the Empressio Ciacci announce the great success of La Duse in Rio de Janeiro. The actress has been at the disposal of all supporters of Dr. Darío Rocha's candidature, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The candidate issued a bulletin yesterday evening confirming the revolution in Corrientes.

Montevideo, 14th.—A great ball will be given to-night in the Solis Theatre. Over 500 ladies have been invited.

The President sent a representative to salute the French Minister.

Many private banquets are to be given to-night.

The city presents a lively appearance with the extraordinary display of flags to commemorate the great anniversary.

We have seldom seen the papers so thickly covered with telegrams, decrees, projects and indigestible stuff of all kinds.

CORRIENTES REVOLUTION.

Already the flames of the Corrientes revolution begin to throw a lurid light over the Republic, and whether it be from the very active steps taken by the Government, or the sending of so reputed a commander as General Ayala to put it down, but certain it is that within the last 24 hours people have changed their minds wonderfully as to the significance of the present revolt. At first we all received with a sneer the news of the row. A Corrientes rebellion is an affair of such frequent occurrence that the news passed in at one ear and out at the other. But yesterday the affair wore a more serious aspect. They were up all night at the Boca shipping company, and at 4.30 a.m. yesterday morning the first war steamer got away, under the command of the 22nd officer.

As the rebels have out the telegraph wires, we know nothing of what is going on; but the Argentine Government has most properly called out the Guardia Nacional of Rosario under command of Major Anderson, a most able step, as otherwise it is most probable, in the hands of the rebels, that the Corrientes would have been a serious matter. The Corrientes would have mobilized the people on his own account, as there is not a more desperate corner in the Republic than the environs of the third place of San Martín.

According to the details of yesterday Governor Derqui laid a trap for Toledo and sent him to his death. He assembled a few friends with the chief of police at the Government House, and invited Colonel Toledo to join the conference. On his way up to the Government House Toledo met a friend who gave him the wink and told him not to be in too great a hurry, as he might not come back as fast as he went. Toledo, who according to every version is a regular "chuchito," at once wheeled out, went to his barracks and marched straight to the Government House where he nabbed "the whole posse comitatus." Governor, Deputy Governor, Minister, Chief of police and friends, and walked them off to prisoners to the Parliament House where he placed them in solitary confinement; he then posted his pickets in the streets, his friends in the barracks, and sent an imperative note to the Governor and Vice Governor requiring them to send in their resignations within 6 hours from the time of their arrest or be shot in the public place.

There is a certain method and iron determination in all Toledo's acts, which shows that he knows what he is about, what to do, and how to do it. He had the Government taken his proper measure, they should never have allowed him to leave Buenos Ayres as he did last night, in the same steamer with Derqui, free passage, free wine and cigars, and now what is worse than all, free resignations and ball cartridges, as it appears when Derqui left here the National Government sent up with him a large consignment of cartridges and ammunition.

Thus Governor Derqui by mistaking his man has committed a most grievous blunder, which is not atoned for by his resignation, and the entry into power of the President of the Legislature. Toledo not only has his own well armed regiment at his orders, but has all the National Guards of that province whom he can get hold of. He has a large force of men, and the consequence of this business will be when General Ayala arrives at Corrientes on Friday next. Ayala is the sworn enemy of Toledo, and one of our most efficient officers. He will have with him 1,450 Chaco troops and those under Colonel Rocha's command, fully one thousand men, but Toledo is not to be despised, and he may play the same trick on Ayala that he did on Derqui, and send him to his death.

It is possible that the matter will be brought before the House, and some new light thrown upon the business. As the matter at present stands there is really no understanding it, since everyone says that Toledo does not fight the National Government but only Derqui, yet Derqui was the friend of the National Government and one of the opposition party. It is like fighting the air as it may feel the flame, and we look with some anxiety to the next advances from this most distressful province.

NATIONAL LANDS.

QUALITY OF SECTIONS XXII. AND XXIII.

(By P. A. Freund, Agronomo.)

The recent sale of land in the triangular piece of land between the Rivers Limay and Neuquen shows the interest which the public take in those far-off lands, of which, generally speaking, very little is known, and for an accurate and detailed knowledge of which many of the intending buyers would have paid heavily. This leads me to ask if you would think it beneficial for your paper and your readers if I gave you a detailed description of one of those far-west sections of National territories, which necessarily very soon will be brought to the hammer, and of which still less is known than of the Neuquen lands. I refer to Section XXII, the boundaries of which are: to the North the 35th degree of South latitude, and to the East the 10th degree of longitude from Buenos Ayres; but you must remember that if I give you a description, which shall be useful for the intending buyers and sellers, such description must necessarily be very weary and dry for those of your readers who never will go to those far-off West regions, and who do not intend occupying themselves in studying the quality of camp-firing, mountains, of grasses and woods in parts where even to-day you may roam about for months without meeting a human being.

Let me then commence with describing the road you must take in order to reach the North-west corner of the 22nd Section; and having gone so far you will tell me whether my description is too much detailed, and too dreary, or whether you have got a sufficient number of readers whose material interests obliges them to study the topography of one of those sections which shortly will become as populated as the inside sections—in which latter case I will continue my description.

San Rafael, in the Province of Mendoza, on the banks of the River Diamante, is a pretty, fertile little town with water and vegetation abounding in several of its streets. There is a church, some stores, a water-mill, some smelting furnaces, and on a Sunday afternoon horse-racing. A Commissary has the command of some 10 or 12 soldiers. Some very extensive but empty barracks show that the town once quivered under a military garrison, which, with a few miles take, once made a little revolution of its own, took the field, and, having discovered its mistake, quietly went home again, its colonel having fled to Chile. In this little town is our starting point for the survey. Close to the water-mill, on the banks of the river, there is an open field belonging to the miller, in which a heavy square stone, some 10 or 12 feet high, marks the spot for the survey. Close to the water-mill, on the banks of the river, there is an open field belonging to the miller, in which a heavy square stone, some 10 or 12 feet high, marks the spot for the survey.

I now propose that my readers should construct a map, laying down a point on a sheet of foolscap indicating San Rafael, and drawing a horizontal line to the East, which has to be made to scale 27,546 metres. At 22,600 metres determine a point, and draw a line to the South, which makes 41,533 metres, and then we have got the North-west corner point of the 22nd Section. Now the section itself can be easily drawn by any one who knows the general outlines and divisions of National territories. A line to the East, of 20 leagues plus 4,890 metres, gives the North boundary, two lines to the South, of 20 leagues plus 4,890 metres, give the West boundary, and the line to the East, of 20 leagues plus 4,890 metres, gives the South boundary. The inside division of the section is like the division of most other sections in 100 lots. The four quarter parts are designated by the letters A, B, C, D, and each letter has got 25 numbers. It is only to be observed that the lots A, B, C, D, are not squares, but in the direction of West and East the lots A, B, C, D, are 2 leagues and 4,890 metres, their North-South extension being 2 leagues.

We now return to San Rafael and study the map through which these lines run. Going to the East from San Rafael, we touch the border of the River Diamante, which at this place is wide and sufficiently strong to carry boulders and big pieces of rocks along its various courses. To the East of the Diamante, the land is very fertile, and the soil is very rich, and the water is very pure, and the climate is very healthy, and the people are very happy, and the country is very beautiful, and the scenery is very grand, and the views are very fine, and the air is very pure, and the water is very pure, and the land is very fertile, and the soil is very rich, and the water is
